HOUSE-OF-ONE-PAVILION ON THE PETRIPLATZ

On January 29, 2017 the Foundation House of One celebrates the opening of a temporary pavilion on the Petriplatz in the center of Berlin, the site of the future House of One – House for Prayer and Learning Berlin.

It will be used as an information and event space for the project.

Until construction of the House of One starts in 2019, interested people can inform themselves about the project and participate in the event program.

For the pavilion, architect office Kuehn Malvezzi designed the central room of the future House of One in a wooden structure at almost 1:1 scale. The outer form follows the rhythm of the columns of the “City Loggia”. The pavilion already promoted the House of One at the “World exhibition Reformation” in Lutherstadt Wittenberg in 2017.

In Berlin, the pavilion will be a heatable event space and form the center of a garden that will let the future three sacred rooms become apparent.

Your are cordially invited to the press conference on January 29, 2018 at 11:00am in the pavilion on the Petriplatz, 10178 Berlin.

The official opening of the pavilion with invited guests will take place subsequent. Remarks will be given by Dr. Klaus Lederer, Senator for Culture and Europe and Prof. Dr. Dr. h.c. mult. Hermann Parzinger, President of the Prussian Cultural Heritage Foundation. You are also cordially invited to attend the official opening. In case you wish to attend, please inform us accordingly as space is limited.

HOUSE OF ONE

DREI RELIGIONEN. EIN HAUS.

About the project

Something that has been globally unprecedented until now is being established in Berlin: Jews, Christians and Muslims are working together to build a structure that will house a synagogue, a church and a mosque under one roof. A house of prayer and interdisciplinary teaching. A place of encounter, for meeting and exchange among people of different faiths. It is also a house for all of those who do not belong to a religious community.

The future sacral building, designed by berlin-based architects Kuehn Malvezzi, offers space for three sacral rooms, being connected by a central room for encounters. The House of One is open to everyone. It respects and values the differences between the religions. It supports a peaceful cooperation and the dialogue of the religions and cultures in the world.

The building is financed by donations and has numerous supporters in politics, economy, and culture.
